

ANALOGIES

NAME: _____

PERIOD: _____

An analogy is a type of word problem. To solve the problem, you must find a word(s) that completes the analogy. Sometimes there seems to be nothing that is similar between the two pairs, but there always is. As you do more and more analogies, you discover different relationships that are used. This makes you much better at solving them.

An analogy is a type of word problem that often appears on standardized tests. It is made up of two word pairs. Your goal in solving an analogy is to find a word that correctly completes the second pair. Both the pairs have the same kind of relationship. To solve the analogy you need to find that relationship.

*An analogy looks like this: puppy : dog :: kitten : cat

*When you say it out loud it sounds like this: "puppy is to dog as kitten is to cat"

*There are different types of comparisons such as these:

1. Part to Whole, in which one word is a part or piece of the other as in nose : face :: ace : deck of cards
2. Antonyms, words that have the opposite meaning as in night : day :: cold : hot 3. Synonyms, words that have the same or similar meanings as in happy : glad :: sliding : skidding
4. Description or Characteristic, in which one word describes the other word as in sandpaper : rough :: ocean : wet
5. Item to Category, in which one word names something that falls into the group named by the other word as in bird : blue jay :: season : winter
6. Rhyme words: nose : hose :: dryer : hire
7. Worker to tool: mechanic : wrench :: programmer : computer

There are many more types of analogies. Sometimes you just have to invent a relationship (type) that solves a certain analogy. For instance, there might be one that just counts the letters in the words. Here's an example:

nose : take :: apple : happy

Order matters! You must place the parts of the analogy in the same order on both sides of "::<". For instance, if the analogy relationship is "Whole to Part," and you place "whole" first on one side then "whole" must be first on the other side.

car : tire :: glasses : nosepiece

Now it's your turn! Complete the following analogies. Use the word bank to help.
